The Board of Public Safety has instructed

EDGAR TALBOTT'S ATTEMPT.

Jenlousy and Cheap Novels Caused Him to Want to Die.

Edgar Talbott, a lineman for the Central Union Telephone Company, and living at 514% South Illinois street, attempted suicide yesterday afternoon by taking laudanum. Tuesday he bought laudanum and showed it to his wife, who managed to take it away from him before he could swallow it. He declared then that he would kill himself. Yesterday he went to Grover's drug store and bought more of the drug. His wife followed him, and after some time learned from the druggist that he had purchased laudanum. She returned to her home and found Talbott had already taken it. Reno, of Justice Sheppard's court, who He said he thought she had gone shopping and he would not be disturbed. Dr. De Vaney, of the City Dispensary, attended Talbott, and after about two hours' work left him in a fair way to recover. Talbott's mother-in-law said he was very tealous, and his mental condition was due, she thought, largely to the reading of cheap novels. She said he spent most of his time reading such novels when not at work.

It is stated that Chief Coots announced emphatically that he is opposed to any effort on the part of the mayor to reduce expenses in the department by doing away with the chemical wagons. The chief, it is stated, said that the combination wagons would be useful in a way, but would not be as serviceable or as effective as the present chemical apparatus. No action of any sort was taken at the meeting, it is said, the members of the administration simply listening to Mr. Glazier's proposition and refraining from taking a stand on the matter. Neither the mayor nor the officials who took part in the meeting would discuss the plan or the probable action of the authorities.

The latter say that there is no room in Indianapolis for more special police, and that if the Board of Safety should issue numerous police powers to the employes of the Indianapolis Police Dispatch Company it would be a great inustice to them. State Labor Commissioner McCormack appeared before the board at the meeting yesterday and spoke against the granting of powers to employes of the company. He said the city police and the merchant organization are sufficient take care of law violators and that the officers of the dispatch company are not needed.
